Eating in Costa Rica & Panama

Food in Costa Rica and Panama is a combination of influences of both the colonial Spanish and Afro-Caribbeans. Staple foods include rice and black beans, which are served at most meals, alongside plantain and grilled or sautéed meat or fish.

Typical breakfasts include Gallo Pinto – rice and beans stir-fried together and served with eggs and sour cream or cheese, whilst a typical lunch, casado, is rice and beans (not mixed) with meat and a salad. Both are delicious and seasoned beautifully with local herbs and vegetables. The indigenous people of the Central American region ate corn as a large part of their diet, and it still features today. Tamales, for example, were introduced by the Aztecs and are still eaten at celebrations, especially Christmas. These are a dough of cornmeal, lard and spices stuffed with meat, rice and vegetables and steamed in a leaf. Another food not too miss are empanadas, a delicious snack. Similar to a Cornish pasty but with a corn-based dough, these are filled with beef, chicken, cheese or fruit.

Whilst we strongly recommend trying as many local dishes as possible, Costa Rica and Panama offer a wide range of international foods.

Accommodation

Your accommodation is selected for convenience of location, comfort or character, and can range from business hotels to rainforest lodges. Hotels are generally rated as local three to four-star standard, but please note that there is no international classification system for hotels and differences in facilities and quality may exist between Australia and South America. All group tour hotels have private bathroom facilities and air conditioning where needed. If you experience any difficulty, please speak to your Local Guide. Rest assured that all hotels used by Wendy Wu Tours are regularly inspected by our staff and our partners to ensure that standards meet your needs.

Transport

Coaches: Coaches with air conditioning are used on our group tours for short excursions to the countryside and longer transfers between destinations. Roads in Central America have generally been improved over recent years, but please be aware traffic and/or weather conditions may extend driving times. There may be sections of road where the surface may be comparatively bumpy but our drivers will do their utmost to lessen the impact.

Planes: Internal flights are based on economy class, with reputable airlines.

Clothing

On this tour, you will be travelling through various regions of Costa Rica and Panama with quite diverse climates especially in whilst in the cloud forests of Arenal and Monte Verde. The climate in Panama can be quite tropical due to its position between the Pacific Ocean and Caribbean Sea. It is recommended to bring plenty layers including the following: T Shirts made of breathable materials, hiking pants, with the option to turn into a short pant (rain pants optional), a fleece jacket for colder parts and the evenings and a waterproof Jacket as shell layer or a light rain jacket, a scarf and hat, warm socks. The climate in Cartagena is tropical, humid and warm we recommend to, wear lightweight breathable clothing. Sensible walking shoes and a small back pack that fits into your main hand luggage to carry your daily essentials.

Souvenirs

There are plenty of interesting items to buy as souvenirs in Costa Rica, such as indigenous handicrafts and artworks, coffee and chocolate, carved wood and products made from the abundance of exotic local fruits, such as jams, jellies and sweets. There will be some opportunities during your tour to pick up souvenirs.

Group Size

Most of our groups consist of 10 travellers or more and will be accompanied by Local Guides. There will usually be no more than 29 travellers in each group. However, at our discretion we may operate departures with a smaller group size as we try to operate advertised departures wherever it is viable to do so.

Tipping Policy

Local tipping is customary in South & Central America. However, this can often lead to awkwardness in knowing when it is appropriate to tip and how much. For your convenience, with years of experience in providing the best customer service, Wendy Wu Tours operates a kitty system on your Group Tour so your Local Guide will look after this aspect of the trip for you. This ensures the amounts paid are reasonable for you and still fair to the local people. Any additional tipping you feel is appropriate is welcomed at your discretion.
